HRS Families ...

Saints and Catholic writers offer us eloquent reminders of how important showing GRATITUDE is. St. Ambrose, a bishop known for his influence on St. Augustine, wrote, "No duty is more urgent than that of returning thanks." G.K. Chesterton, an early 20th Century British writer who converted to Catholicism, wrote, "When it comes to life, the critical thing is whether you take things for granted or take them with gratitude."

This week, in a spirit of giving thanks and exercising gratitude, HRS is recognizing people from the HRS community who have made special donations to the Marathon. Please review the list and, when possible, share a personal word of thanks with these generous individuals as you see them in the community. Have a good week!
